Woodlawn Farmers' Club [Reported for the Alexandria Gazette.]

The March meeting of the Woodlawn

Farmers' Club was held at the residence of Waiter Walten on the first instant. President Pierson being unwell John Ballenger occupied the chair. After the minutes were read some further discussion was had upon the irrigation question deferred from last meeting. Some thought no encouragement should be given to the proposition of bringing more land that is now unproductive into competition with that already in cultivation, assuming that farmers are now suffer-ing from the effects of overproduction. This opened up the whole subject of the prostration of the farming interests. A member, whose sylvan home is near the classic shores of the Ipsawasson, read a paper which he had started to prepare on that topic, but had not seen his way clear to finish it. There were numerous causes por-trayed without any effective panacea being evolved. His wealth of intellectual resource was in some way hampered, or we would no doubt have been favored with a remedy; in fact, it was hinted that Morpheus got the better of him before the end was reached. A dis cussion of a very wide range followed-the middlemen were duly overhauled for the very large share of the farmers' profits they absorbed, while some thought we could not get along without them. We had a gentle-man with us who had been a prominent member of the order of Patrons of Husbandry, and his aid was invoked. He expandry, and his aid was invoked. He expained the working of their business system to some extent. They had failed to satisfactorily solve the problem as a rule. He thought the Rochedale plan of co operation was worthy of trial. Some of the granges in Maryland have been quite succession their contents of the factories the factories that for the succession of the successi ranges in Maryland have been quite successful in their efforts to benefit the farmers composing them. One of our members who is now engaged with a grange agency in Washington, gave some account of the beneficial operations of that establishment. It was finally concluded that the matter of irrigation of arid lands might be left with the people of those States and territories in which they lie, provided the general government.

which they he, provided the general government does not make any appropriations for the purpose. As being in the line of investigation of the subject under consideration, there was handed to the secretary to read a circular issued by the Practical Farmer, containing extracts from the December report of the Practical Farmer, containing extracts from the December report of the December report of the December of Agriculture and CONVENIENT BRICK the statistician of the Department of Agri-culture, in reference to the establishment of Syndicate agricoles in France, which ap pear to be producing very beneficial results there-an organization somewhat similar to which they lie, provided the general gov-

the granges in this country.

The secretary read a letter from Secator Moore in response to one which had been relad to him relative to the contempla ted legislative reforms in the matter of as sessments and collection of taxes, etc. There were also some public documents on the table for distribution, forwarded from Rich mond by Senator Moore.

Courtland Lukens offered a resolution requestion members to bring their agricultural papers to the meetings for the purpose of exchange, which was approved, as was also a resolution requesting the county authorities to so enlarge and improve the buildings at the county poor house as to accommodate all that apply for aid, to the end that all assistance to outside poor may be dispensed with. This elicited quite a spirited discussion, in which a number of instances of abuses in the present system were cited, and the action of the club was unanimous.

The idea has prevailed to a large extent that it is cheaper to support the poor scat-tered about an ... ag their friends, but there is a well grounded belief that a change as is proposed will result in much saving to the PAINTED THE TOWN BLACK .- The front of nearly every building in the village of We nerville, Pa., was painted black Tuesday night by men as yet unknown. A boatman who went through the outskirts of the place at night says that at about two o'clock he saw a gang of mask-ed men ride toward the town and tie their horses ed men ride toward the town and the their norses near the toll house. The gang then quickly went liet the town and began their nefarious work. One of the men held a revolver at the head of the bostman and warned him to keep quiet or be shot. In the morning the place looked as if in mourning. The inhabitants were early astir and dumbfounded when they saw what had taken place. The only persons blamed for the outrage are a desperate gang of thieves that have been operating along the Berkes and Lehigh Bailroad.
